Basin Presents Possibilities

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

OTR GROW PLANS TO HIRE ONE OF THOSE SWAMPY SQUADS THAT ARE NOW BEING FUNDED UP IN THE CHANDEL RIVER. AND HAVE IT FOR HIM OWN PRIVATE BEACH THIS SUMMER.

FROM THE OFFICE.

THEY ARE MAKING LAND SO FAST THAT ANY MOTOR BOAT OWNER WHO STAYS AWAY ALL NIGHT IS UNABLE TO FIND THAT A BEACH HAS BEEN MADE UNDER HIS CRAY BY MORNING.

SOME OF THE DEBATES ALONG THE RIVER MIGHT HAVE SOME ISLAND LOCATIONS FOR SUMMER WORK.

WE MAY SEE A REVERSE BEACH EFFECT ALONG THE RIVER THIS SUMMER.

IN GOING TO JUST A LITTLE OVER THE SIDE.

LEMASS LEADS PROTEST

The existing disagreement did not arise because the council collectively changed its view, but because some of the staunchest Republicans, such as Sen. Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, objected to De Valera's methods in approaching the protest.

Their contention is that more than they accomplished by negotiation than by bombastic manifestos defying the British, which they will only defeat the ends Ireland is striving to achieve.

While the greater opposition to De Valera is in a minority, it is important evidence of the undermining of the Valera's national support if he should act contrary to the Free State's wishes.

PARTIES MIXE REBELS

Business Demands That Such Rebels as La Guardia Be Denied the Use of Emblems

By LOUIS NEWBOLD

New York, March 30 (US)—The outbreak of radicalism over the tax legislation in Congress is causing concern among Republican, Democratic and business leaders in New York and other states.

In some professional quarters the attitude of representative wearing party labels has provoked resentment against leadership which has acquiesced in the nomination of men who openly flout party obligations.

One highly significant move is in process of development among business leaders. Party leaders have been urged by the sponsors of the bill with party endorsements from the situation. The surprising part of the rebuke is that it is coming from the Republican side.

During the last week there have been many lively discussions of the subject and one or two significant statements have been made. Republican party representatives out of the situation have been urged by the sponsors of the bill with party endorsements from the situation.

U. S. S. LINES CUT EUROPEAN FARES 20 PERCENT

Reduction Much Greater Than Indicated; Meets Rates of Foreign Competitors

New York, March 30 (AP)—The United States Lines today put into effect reductions averaging 20 per cent in transatlantic fares for all classes of passage on the ships Leviathan, President Roosevelt and President Harding.

The cut followed word that the transatlantic passenger conference meeting in Brussels, had decided on similar reductions. The U. S. Lines said a member of the conference.

A statement said the U. S. Lines "fully goes very much further" than 20 per cent "as there will be no increase in the fares for the next months."

"It is an old practice of steamship lines to increase rates in May for the summer, but with the reduction this practice is discontinued," the announcement stated. "Those who travel by sea will actually pay tickets at a reduction between 20 and 30 per cent on the fares in effect last year."

The lowest first-class rate for the Leviathan will now be $102 as compared with the former rate of $125. A suite that cost $240 for two persons in the past has been reduced to $180. The Leviathan has been reduced to $118 to Cherbourg and $125 to London. Round trip fares will be $230 to London and $275 to New York.

Tourist rates on the Leviathan have been cut 20 per cent and third-class rates 30 per cent. Tourist fares have been reduced to $10 for one-way, for the English port, $108 to Cherbourg and $118 to Bremen. Round trip fare will be $175 to London and $215 to New York.

Boy, Under Knife 97 Times, Grins as He Waits No. 98

Fairmont, W. Va., March 30 (US)—Frankie Powell, with all the promises of his five years, today waited for the days to Saturday on his fingers—"Thursday and Friday," that's his time.

What Saturday? You could guess, too, if you were a doctor. It was 87 operations, and Frankie's operations in Cook Hospital were a healthy check. He is healthy. And 32 times those checks have writhed into a cheerful grin as the conscious-blurring anesthetic cleared away.

Not all of the operations necessary. But now, things are looking up for Frankie. The code is a thing of the past. He can breathe with considerable ease and difficulty, and as for his morale... "He's one game little kid," he declared his nurse in affectionate admiration.

New York, March 30 (US)—An unusual use of the sales tax idea was considered today by Mayor Walker, to whom Lindsay Rogers, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, indicated today the automobile industry will make a vigorous fight against the proposed manufacturing tax on motor cars.

The opposition to the tax, he said, will be based on the claim that the automobile industry is doing more to break the buying deadlock than any other industry.

WOMEN READY FOR JOB DRIVE

The women's division for the "Find a Job" campaign has set up headquarters at the Boston Young Women's Christian Association, with Mrs. Charles Allen Porter, of Beacon st., as chairman.

A meeting will be held on Friday morning at 11 o'clock, when outstanding organizations will send representatives to hear plans for the drive.

Julius Daniels, vice-chairman of the campaign committee, Louis J. Hunter, chairman of the neighborhood work committee, and E. A. Johnson will be the speakers.

SUPPORT APLENTY

Mr. Roosevelt has more official workers in the state than Heinz has pickles. Big Jim Farley lined them up effectively. They include Mrs. Charles L. Donahue, national committee chairman, and John W. Dooley, chairman of the state committee, who are to be elected delegates from the First Congressional District. Ex-Mayor Louis J. Brand of Lewiston, who will be one of the two from the second district; Mayor Robert J. Dunbar of Waterville; and Mayor Wallace F. Mahoney of Bangor, who will be elected from the third district.

Mahoney, who at the age of 25 is the youngest ever chosen to guide a Maine municipality, is a pet of young Jim Roosevelt, who maintains a summer home at Campobello, near Bangor. When Mayor M. M. Richardson of Bangor, P. Williams of Augusta, introduced young Jim to more Democrats than Hoover shook hands with in the course of a year.

The Roosevelt board strategy is augmented by such old and experienced hands in the game of give and take as Wiley Gilpatrick of Saco, James R. Perkins of Boothby, Carter B. Kent of Freeport, Charles White of Augusta and Basil O'Rourke of Bangor, who once was Governor Roosevelt's law partner.

At the head and front of the Smith movement is Edward C. Joseph, Jr., who twice ran for governor when there was no chance and is now running for Congress in the Second District when there is a chance. Mr. Moran wants to be elected to Congress. The Roosevelt people are uncertain whether they will throw him out. If so, Moran's supporters claim they will disrupt the convention and will try to get the Roosevelt managers looking they will never be able to forget.

LIQUOR AN ISSUE

Backing him is Clinton C. Stevens, a candidate for Congress in Penobscot County, who declares: "I certainly wouldn't hurt a man in my district to be the author of defeated resolutions for prohibition of Alfred E. Smith."

Ex-Judge Joseph E. F. Connelly throws out a hint that the convention will be turned upside down. "If the Roosevelt people try to ride roughshod through it, while another ex-Judge, Charles L. Donahue, who has long been a plied delegate always have and always will bring trouble in the Maine democracy."

Prohibition offers the best chance for a fight. The sage and clever Judge Donahue proposes that the convention avoid the issue by declaring that prohibition is a national issue and that the Maine people will abide by the decision of the National Convention and its candidate for President.

But the younger generation insist upon having their say.

"Let's stand up like men and be counted," declares Attorney Donald Gallagher of Bangor. "Everybody knows that prohibition is a failure. Let's say so and devote for a National referendum in order that the people may express their conviction."

DILL FOR KEYNOTE

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, ex-Governor of Wyoming, told the delegates last night that economic conditions, not prohibition, will be the issue before the American people.

"When we have children fainting in school for lack of food and babies born with the ticks for lack of nourishment, the women of this country will rise to their responsibility. The paramount issue today is to feed the motherhood," she said.

She urged Charles C. Dill to be on from Washington, delivering the keynote speech in the Convention.

"The power trust is out to capture the nominations in both parties," she warns. "A commonwealth where power has been a constant issue for 20 years."

FOR HELD IN DAVE ON CRIME IN DORCHESTER

While extra police cruised Dorchester, civic organizations today planned a series of mass meetings to demand better protection against crime.

Conditions were brought to a head yesterday and the day before when a long series of housebreaks, holdups and petty thievery grew to a bank robbery and a series of break-ins by a street young man and a "girl raffles."

Even as eight special officers were in conference with Capt. Harry N. Dickinson at Police Court station two armed men escaped with $65 in a holdup in Neponset ave.

A short time before, however, Special Officer Edward Abraham, Daniel Kerr and Patrick Keane arrested three boys in the cellar of an Adams st. house.

Kerr also captured Roger Michael, 25, of Brooklyn, N. Y., as he later crawled in a store at 1975 Dorchester ave.

The prisoner was held for the grand jury in Dorchester Court today in the sum of $200 after waiving examination.

Police heads took cognizance of conditions in Capt. Dickinson's division after Patrick J. Connelly, president of the Dorchester Board of Trade, sent formal protest to Commissioner Hurliman.

Flynn Faces 30-Day Term for Contempt

New York, March 29 (U.S.)—William J. Flynn, Bronx commissioner of public works, was adjudged in contempt by Supreme Court Justice Ford for refusing to answer questions before the Hotelater legislative committee.

Justice Ford indicated he would sign an order today sentencing Flynn to a 30-day jail term unless he purges himself of contempt by testifying.

At the State Laboratory

With the Candid Camera

The State of Massachusetts drives a hard bargain in its purchases for institutions. Often the public has the impression that all that is needed is the signing of a contract and the goods are there. I found things otherwise. On the fifth floor of the State House, one may visit the purchasing department laboratory, where commodities are tested, weighed, measured and the usefulness of the purchased article is scientifically figured.

First I'll show you the man who is in charge of this laboratory. He is Dr. Fred W. Hooper. He was looking over specifications of coal when I arrived.

And in the laboratory I met Miss Ruth Blaisdel, a junior chemist, who was busy testing yeast. The yeast is purchased for bakeries maintained by the Commonwealth.

Next I spied Miss Doris Moore, also a junior chemist, who was examining a piece of coal to ascertain how much sulphur it contained. Miss Moore turns her reports over to Dr. Flanagan for final decision.

FATHER COUGHLIN TALKS TO WOMEN

Rights Lost to Woman by Divorce

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American—All Rights Reserved)

Royal Oak, Mich., March 30—"What of the days when grey hair and wrinkles replace youth's spontaneity, youth's vivacity?"

Father Coughlin asked this question of America's women as he denounced divorce and branded it the cause of woman's downfall and the thief of woman's love.

"Oh, if women were wise," he spoke bitterly, "if they were wise they would fight against divorce! They would organize and rebel against an unbearable law that robs them of their home, their family and their dear ones."

It is too easy to be divorced in this day—too easy to discard women, he added.

"On the high seas, it is women and children first. But on the high seas of matrimony, men first," he advised. "Men can get remarried. But what of the women? What of the millions of women who have sacrificed their youth and beauty, their purity and their life's best hours? Are they blind to the folly?"

"The girl who marries a divorced man, who is wife to a Remarried man today, becomes his divorced wife tomorrow."

Women can not always remain virgins, youthful. When they are, what then? When can't remain young forever. And when the silver shows in aged heads and the lines replace a face that was once firm and fresh, who, then, is to keep them?

Wedlock Is Holy Should Be Too Sacred to Wreck by Divorce

"Oh, women are blind today. They are not into the future. Into those years when companionship should replace passion; when the union of two minds and two hearts that must be one in affection should replace the union of two bodies."

"What of the 25 or 25 years to come?" Vision. Women must have vision, my friends.

"Some men are not holdable. But marriage founded for the majority by the majority must exist for the majority."

"Man and woman marry for life. They hope the love will last. But divorce warps woman's mind, man's too."

"There can be no two women in a home, or in a man's mind and heart. First love is true love. If women want to preserve their freedom, they must fight against divorce."

"Divorce is ruining marriage. It is making of marriage prostitution. The marriage sacrament is too sacred to be broken at will, with the facile assistance of divorce."

Father Coughlin has no use for those "parasitic women" who fawn on men, demanding all and giving nothing.

"Woman who gets for herself a gigolo, is herself a machine-made gigolo. That is no way to preserve the holy bonds. No husband will accept that. And the man who gads about with his stenographer is as bad."

"Should divorce be fought and dented there would be no such promiscuous flaunting of the wedding vows. Fidelity can't be thrown overboard and civilization continue to thrive."

"The sixth commandment says: 'Thou shalt not commit adultery.' And he who breaks the commandment will suffer, not physical punishment, but great spiritual punishment."

The real life is the life beyond. The real happiness is the happiness of the hereafter. Women should be soldiers in this world to emerge victorious in the next. "There is too much love of promiscuous infidelity, with the opportunity of remarriage at will. If divorce were wiped away from the face of the earth, marriage would be no longer a hasty contract."

"We have evolved a civilization wherein a girl doesn't want a home, but self-expression."

Sociologists who have preached a doctrine of self-expression and completed living have forced women into sexual debaucheries, Father Coughlin charged.

Quotes Shakespeare Self-Preservation Should Be Woman's First Law

Man's respect of woman is not founded on possession but on understanding, he declared.

He pointed out that increased divorce is rising high and mighty on the waves of irreligion, lack of faith, lack of belief.

Father Coughlin said he was glad to have this opportunity to speak through the Boston Evening American his views on women, to urge upon them the dire necessity for their own survival their withdrawal from the support of divorce.

"Self-preservation is the first law of nature," he commented. "The preservation of women demands their renunciation of this vile evil."

Suddenly his face beamed. His eyes widened with brightness. His hands, entwined, rested on his knees.

"Do you know this sonnet of Shakespeare?" he asked me. "Do American women know it? Let me quote it for them."

"And he faded."

"Let me not in the marriage of true minds."

Adjust, impediments. Love is not love which alters when it alteration finds.

Or bends with the remover to remove. O, no! it is an ever-fixed mark That looks on tempests and is never shaken.

It is the star to every wandering bark, Whose worth's unknown, although his light be taken, Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks Within his bending sickle's compass come.

Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks, But bears it out even to the edge of doom. If this be error and upon me proved, I never writ, nor no man ever loved."

RICH PATRONESS ACCUSES MAN SHE AIDED

While his wife, with her two-year-old son in her arms, looked on sadly, Mihai Serbagi, concert singer of West Roxbury, pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbery, while armed, his wealthy benefactress.

Serbagi, assigned before Judge Milken in district court at New Bedford, denied forcing his benefactress to stand at the door of his home at gunpoint to sign a promissory note for $25,000 in taking money from her husband.

He was held, however, in $10,000 for a hearing on Saturday and in lieu of ten bond was remanded in the House of Correction in New Bedford until that date.

Police say that the woman Mrs. Oliver Prescott, telephoned from a nearby house and a search was started for the singer at once. Police of the West Roxbury station were asked to watch his home and they arrested him there early last night. He was taken to New Bedford.

Police said that neither the gun nor the note was found on Serbagi when he was arrested. He denied the accusation and said that he had visited Mrs. Prescott to discuss money from his earnings as a singer which he had turned over to her to invest.

RIVAL AIDS WIFE IN LOVE SUIT

Written by her two sisters, the poem which was introduced in court. The poem, titled "Lonely" read:
When she is away I can do as I please,
But it's little I planned to do,
For, oh, so long in those hours of rest,
That I once looked forward to,
And if I am free, I don't care,
How sorry I am for him,
Who has never been close to a woman's face,
Nor bowed to her slightest whim,
I may not be his best friend,
But neither I choose to do,
The old-time pleasure but lost their art,
And I cannot afford the years,
I am much too old for the younger things,
Too young for the slipper gait,
So, lonely, I shuffle my way along
To the end of the day.
If this be the freedom some men boast,
With its right to come and go,
Then I must be alone if I like best,
And a woman's "yes" and "no,"
For when she's away I'm all at ease,
And ever I find it true,
That lonely men may do as they please,
It's little I planned to do.
The letter carrying this poem ended, "live, live dear. Please love me a little and remember me in your prayers. Your ever loving pal, Hail." There were 15 "X's" appended.

PRICE CHANGES

New York, March 30.—Price changes were only minor in trading on the New York stock exchange today. The general list was unchanged in the face of discouraging reports of steel and electric power production today, although bears were somewhat nervous.

The list pushed up a point or two in the first hour, apparently on a fleeting short covering, then gradually eased off, some issues showing moderate losses by early afternoon. A rally appeared at the close.

Utilities were heavy. Power & Light preferred issues showed a point or more in new lows, as did American Power & Light common.

Market closed with a steady tone, concluding a session in which leading shares generally made fractional fluctuations.

Several electric power issues, including members of the Broad & Share group, were heavy, although their declines were followed by calls and inducements.

Electric, Chemicals, Goodrich Rubber and New York traction issues were steady. Steel American Telephone and International Telephone firms showed moderate gains.

The early aping carried such issues as Alchem, Union Pacific and Allied Chemical up a couple of points, but they were followed by short-lived recovery.

Despite the encouragement in short-lived recovery, the indications of a recovery in the market were not sufficient to encourage the budget under Speaker Canner, bridge quarters were continued, although the prospect of the increased tax on securities was not sufficient to encourage the market.

Nevertheless, this apparently was not appreciable, and the market was not sufficiently buoyant to encourage the market.

What the Hearst [No. 1] Papers Advocate 8 [Five-billion-dollar Federal loan for public works and to re-hire unemployed.]

'Bad Willie' Goes Away All Patched Up at Taxpayers' Expense

"Bad Willie" Gray and his valet, a kind little burglar, furnished him in Charles St. jail that his hours there might not be too unpleasant, went away this morning.

Their departure was just a little bit hurried, and this probably accounts for their not taking with them the office furniture and other souvenirs of a very pleasant visit. So much was done for the comfort of the known gangster, robber and jail-breaker that had the pair been thoroughly primed on etiquette, they surely would have left at least a formal note of appreciation.

Of course, they might have been given a key to the front door instead of having their clothing slightly disarranged in leaving down a few feet of headcloth to the street below. They also had to furnish their own automobile for the journey away. But one simply can't expect everything.

Sheriff Kellier's compliments follow the lovely pair. "The affair was rapidly planned and extremely well executed," he announces. Making the affair the high spot in Willie's week-end in jail.

For this is a compliment that even such a practiced expert as nose-thumbing at sheriffs as "Bad Willie" must appreciate.

"Bad Willie" has been an annoying person to public and police for several years. At times, this annoyance has become so pointed that the gentleman has had his anatomy variously punctured by bullets. But in three cases now, after a brief period of surgical attention, rest, recuperation and loving kindness as a guest of the people, in jail, he has gone away, patched up nicely for the resumption of his robberies and assaults. On three other occasions, something inside the jails went askew and his going away plans were interrupted.

"Bad Willie" stayed with us in Boston just long enough for the taxpayers to give him perfect hospital treatment and care, and to restore him to full vigor and debility. Good food, rest and nice, light hospital room, with surgeons sewing, patching and worrying can do wonders for restoring the morals of even the most venal and punctured robber. Especially is this true when the patient is another hurried nor harassed by police, the lack of a job, or budget balancing. His time is his own; he stays until he's well again, ready to face the world anew in his chosen life-work.

After a sojourn in City Hospital here, "Bad Willie" was given a change of scenery and more pleasant companionship in the hospital ward of the jail. Let him become bored and lack contact with the ideas and ideals of his own world. Burglar Vincent Zamotai was assigned to him as nurse, orderly, companion, and liaison man for gangsters awaiting Willie's return to the world outside.

Out of this ideal companionship developed the decision to be good pals for life, perhaps. Isn't that a sweet thought—two burglars, once strangers, and going about their robbing and assaulting as strangers to each other, now joined in hellishness? The first step, of course, was to go away together.

So there miraculously appeared a saw, sheets and blankets, and whatever else was needed for a going away without disturbing their hosts. Bars were sawed at convenient intervals and fate decreed no one should hear or see.

Their going away doubtless will irritate the police, who have risked their lives on several occasions to bring "Bad Willie" in. Unless the public is lucky and the pair are caught before they have a chance to kill, rob or maim a lot more innocent men and women, there probably will be some dead officers, cracked skulls or other unpleasant features connected with their next adventure with the law.

One hates to be crude or nasty in discussing such fine gentlemen as this pair, but one cannot but hope that the next time "Bad Willie" is shot, the job is done so well that the State and the hospitals, and all the medical lore of our best surgeons will not be able to patch him up.

Our police have shown commendable zeal and excellent marksmanship lately. So we can at least hope for the best.

Some Kindly Landlords

Mr. Ralph W. Robert, State Director of the Necessaries of Life, has a kind word for the indulgent landlords who have not pressed their unfortunate tenants for rent in the hard times through which we have been passing.

The complaint can be regarded as significant and merited because from the time of Eugene C. Sullivan and through the administration of Charles Adams to the incumbency of Robert, the Commission on the Necessaries of Life has been a very consistent friend of the consumers.

"We have in the past denounced many landlords because of their unwillingness to accept a reasonable profit in return for their investment," says Robert.

"We are equally pleased at this time to commend the thousands of home owners in this Commonwealth who have allowed tenants to remain in their property for periods ranging from one to fifteen months without paying rent."

Very good. There is no act more tragic and no stigma upon the social status more than the eviction of a family from the home. We find it easy to scold the landlord. His rent has not been lowered in proportion to the average cost of living. Yet we are prone to forget that taxes and insurance, two of the most important fixed charges, have not been reduced to him.

In these times, when we have lacked leadership so much, the average man has done pretty well for his brother in distress. Without his generosity, they would have been terrible times indeed. So, let us all join in these kind words for those landlords who have been charitable and generous to their tenants in distressful condition.

Bread Line Upper Crust

NEW YORK, March 29.—In a loftier social realm they are tagged "les nobles de la pureté"—dignitaries who think it smart to be broke and gab about it. The identical folk who prattled grandiloquently of their Rovers, chaises, now tell of scrubbing the bathroom floors. The upper crust of the bread line!

Society columns now and then print paragraphs about Mrs. Vanthorpe resigning her mansion, furnished—items sent in by the ladies themselves, incidentally. Much of the economic slashing is, of course, merely chatter, but there have been sweeping retrenchments among the elite.

With it flowers the new social grace of being quixotic in adversity. Dinner parties in aristocratic areas request guests to wear informal attire. Those who have not hocked tuxedos are not wearing them. Shopping at the five and ten has become a diversion.

It has a surface aura of noblesse oblige, yet underneath is a rousing resentment against snobbery of all kinds.

Voyagers occupying de luxe cabins to Europe this early winter return modestly second class in slow boats. The hit musical comedy of the year is a travesty of depression among the nabobs. They make merry carrying trays in self-serving cafes.

The pastor of a very rich congregation recently intoned from his pulpit, "There are some men today many who have not been to services in years. You have come seeking spiritual joy only because materialism has mocked you once again."

Spring filters to the eternal soufflé of the world. Side preventions Pinocchio players, despite a nip in the air, have their tables outside and libbers can't get the vice of the pinocchio is the famous locality mayor, Steth McCarthy, who declares the game is just in its infancy.

A yellowing diary reveals that just 20 years ago I managed to attract one of many males' orders room rent selling a slight strategic jest to life. And there was the beautiful notation: "Getting on in the world at last." Many in later years smile at such youthful pummeling as entire irrelevance. Christopher Morley once closed a tender biography amazingly apropos. He wrote: "Perhaps it was like all of us—kissing the footprint where life had been, missing life itself!"

A part of my equipment for storming the city were "letters of introduction," vaguely complimentary, such as "I have known the bearer for many years, etc." Letters thought those who read such padded puffery regarded them as forged and expected me to turn out my pockets for hidden loot. After a year, this bulwarked, I never got the job.

The gentleman I bothered most in quest of a job was the late T. E. Niles. As managing editor of the old Evening Mail he had given Grantland Rice, C. L. Edson, Franklin P. Adams and others the New York chance. Mine finally came on the outer rim of his copy desk. "I don't seem able to keep you out of the office," he said, "so I'll put you to work. But at the end of seven months they couldn't reconcile my astonishing genius to the $35 stipend. So I became a columnist."

In those days Grantland Rice's name was criss-crossed on every sign as can well be remembered in Broadway's vagrant breezes. Yet the other evening he confessed his pay was but $40 a week. But I furnished him with theater tickets pilfered from the patron and forgiving Burns Mantle, whose desk adjoined.

Discovery

We have lost the foolish notions which have cluttered deep the past.

We used to think that money was a pleasure that could last. We barricaded fortune against thieves who lived to prey. But the world went topsy turey and the dollars slipped away.

Time was by silk and broadcloth we were very much impressed. We thought it proof of courage that a man was richly dressed. But we've had two years of hardship and now only brave men smile.

And we've learned that faith and friendship are more permanent than style.

Once we gave our hearts to splendor and we thought we ought to brag.

Now we fancied life's great conquests must lie far away from home.

But the storms of trade swept o'er us and we found our triumphs vain.

And we're back beside the fireplace singing simple songs again.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Do Wives Lie?

WHY DO wives lie to their husbands?

Every wife does. Not out-and-out whoopers, perhaps, but small evasions, quiet concealments, pretty little cover-up gestures, all of which deceive as thoroughly as downright dishonesty.

But why should loyal, loving wives want to deceive loyal, loving husbands?

Pantelmon Romanoff asks that question in his new book, "WITH-OUT CHERRY BLOSSOM," and answers it. NO YOUNG MAN SHOULD GET MARRIED UNTIL HE HAS READ THAT ANSWER. Women won't need to read it. They know it already!

"WITHOUT CHERRY BLOSSOM" is a story of love under Soviet Russia. Modern Russians believe that something should be done about marriage—something which will keep it from ending in wrangling, boredom, monotony or bitterness. Perhaps if men and women could be perfectly free, perfectly honest with each other, love would last. So, what with industrial equality, a single sex standard, free love, live divorces and state marriages, a lively experimental time is being had by all. Maybe romance will survive it—and maybe it won't.

In the meantime, Pantelmon Romanoff shows how various in-dividuals are affected by this upheaval. There's A. O. who writes "Letters of a Woman." For years A. O. has lived quietly, conventionally with her husband. Their marriage, once an ecstasy, has subsided into a monotonous habit under which both are stagnating. But A. O. has accepted the situation. Such monotony and stagnation were inevitable in marriage; so she thought.

But now suddenly she begins to question and rebel. Why should marriage be allowed to do this thing to human life. Is any marriage sacred—is it even decent?—if it blots out a woman's personality, stops her inner growth, makes her act a role which is against her nature?

For A. O. sees very clearly that marriage does make life of wives. There isn't a single day, she cries, "during which a woman does not in some way or another deceive her husband."

It is because she is innately dishonest? Or cruel? Or has her eye on some other man? No; her deceit is based on her very desire to please and to humiliate him.

"But it is no longer necessary for a wife to lie in order to please or to humiliate her husband," you say. "Women had to do that once; but now they can support themselves and live honestly alone."

Yes. But half a dozen years of economic equality cannot undo a million years of domestic inequality. Wives still expect to be pleased. Wives still strive to please. So the mudslide begins.

How often you answer this or the other expression of a man's feeling, not because you are in sympathy but simply because it is better not to hurt him or to show openly that you have less feelings than he expects or imagines you to have.

"FROM THIS BEGINNING AN UNSEEN THREAD BEGINS TO WEAVE TOGETHER A HUGE LIE, WHICH FILLS INTO YOUR MIND AND BECOMES A PART OF YOUR LIFE. THE FURTHER YOU LIVE AND WHOM YOU LOVE AND THE FURTHER THE LIE BECOMES."

So the secret disruption of marriages begins. But how can it be stopped?

If a woman insists on being her honest self, so frequently indifferent, even cool, to the man she loves, he will surely desert her. He could understand it in a man, but he cannot understand it in a woman. He needs a picture of what a wife should be. He is hurt, horrified and alienated. He has been cheated. Extraneous elements start.

Yes, certainly, every young man should read "WITHOUT CHERRY BLOSSOM" before he marries.

WELL, IS IT? What's YOUR guess?

Those Joe Grundy Democrats

By Claude G. Bowers

WE SHALL KNOW within a week whether the Democratic Party is fit to be entrusted with power in these critical times. During the last week more has been done to destroy faith in its capacity to rule than ever before.

This would not be so serious from the viewpoint of the country if the Republican Party had not so tragically demonstrated its ineptness to grapple with the crisis its own stupid economic blunders have brought upon the nation.

This is a bad time to destroy the people's faith in both old parties. It is bad for our representative theory of government.

When men calling themselves Democrats enter a stampede to prove that special privilege tariffs and trade barriers are the fundamental principle of the party of Jefferson and invited the rebuke they received from Charles Crisp, of Georgia.

Both Parties Under Banner of Privilege

From the Democratic viewpoint we have never seen anything quite so degrading and destructive as the exhibition of last Saturday. Democrats wrestling with the Republican for the banner of privilege was a sight for the gods and enough to make the angels weep. What a spectacle when even Hawley, co-author of the present tariff, added his protest against the silly tendency to inject tariff reductions into measures intended to increase revenue on which the country is waiting!

The protests of Rainey and Crisp, the authorized leaders of the party, were unable for a while to put an end to the utter madness. We have seldom read anything finer or manlier than Mr. Crisp's protest in which he served warning that if the House persisted in its policy in injecting such amendments he would vote against the bill. Out of the wrangling and the shouting of the last ten days one man has emerged, defeated but triumphant, in that he has commanded the profound respect and admiration of every thoughtful American—Crisp, of Georgia.

Sees His Party Destroying Itself

Just at the moment when this laughing, jeering revolt against all the plans, by men who offer no substitute, and get down to a vote on the tariff, the nation's credit is balanced, that the nation's credit cannot be saved without adding taxation burdens to all the people. We are now enjoying the fruits of a Hoover deficit and a Hoover panic.

We have the Hoover regime, not because of the rich alone; they voted for this regime, but they are not a corporate's guard. It was the masses of the people who put it in; and they must help pay the price.

There is no other way in which it can be paid. They wanted it; they got it; and it is a luxury for them to say they must pay for it. They cannot possibly get it from the rich. The new crop of millionaires has been taken care of.

And we must get it somehow, or else America will find itself only on the threshold of its panic.

For the Shipping Board

President Hoover ought to look no farther than New England to secure a successor to Edwin C. Plummer as a member of the United States Shipping Board. The passing of Mr. Plummer took from New England its only place on that Board as well as the one member who had been consistently distinguished as the advocate of an adequate merchant marine for America. Mr. Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and ex-Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine have both been mentioned for the place.

Both are ship-minded. Both would advance the merchant marine. Mr. Davis is also a member of the Boston Port Authority and it can be said to his credit that no man has been more alert to the development and expansion of the port of Boston. Perhaps other good men will be suggested. We have a shipping and export background in New England and that heritage should be drawn upon by President Hoover for the best interest of the country as a whole.
